

World Strings Series – Authentic Bouzouki

From the same family as mandolin and lute, the teardrop shaped bouzouki's history dates back to antiquity, evolving from a six-string instrument to eight strings in the latter half of the 20th century. The front of the body is flat and is typically inlaid with mother-of-pearl designs. Played with a plectrum, the bouzouki has a sharp metallic sound.

Still widely played in Greek folk music, the bouzouki has become increasingly popular in contemporary American folk and progressive bluegrass music.

For this signature Bouzouki bundle, EarthMoments sampled and recorded a young prodigy from a traditional Greek family, whose playing has distinct influences of contemporary music styles.

While the soundscape carries a strong classical signature, the sets of both traditional and contemporary phrases gives you the flexibility to easily incorporate the samples into your compositions.

World Strings Series – Desert Oud Bundle

EarthMoments releases the first Bundle of the ultra special World Strings Series that explores the many string instruments of the world.

The Desert Oud Bundle delivers 384 warm and organic acoustic Oud loops played expertly on an ancient Oud, bringing to life the rich, exotic sound of Arabia and the magic of the deserts.

Offering a range of different rhythms and styles from North Africa to the Middle East, this classic collection of inspiring sounds covers everything from original down tempo acoustic sessions, right through to upbeat studio hooks.

The Oud traditionally focuses on mid-range frequencies, played using a thin piece of wood as a plectrum.

Optimised with the closest attention to detail, the Desert Oud Bundle samples have been recorded using tube Pre-Amps and Mics on 96kHz.

World Strings Series – Celtic Harp

The Celtic Harp - also known as folk harp - is an ancient instrument that dates back over 4000 years. While the Celtic Harp brings to mind the Celtic green isles that has influenced Celtic culture and music through the centuries, the harp developed in many variations in Africa, Europe, North and South America and Asia.

Traditionally a popular instrument with medieval bards and troubadours, classical music composers through the ages have been inspired to create music that does true justice to the harp's spectacular range of sound and tones.

Enchanting and magical, this beautiful multi-stringed instrument can sound sweet or powerful depending on the strings used. Today, most harpers prefer nylon strings instead of wire.

Without any digital inputs, the Celtic Harp Bundle is a boutique collection of acoustic samples performed by master harper Tomer Bahar.

These Royalty Free recordings of the Celtic Harp are optimised with the closest attention to detail and have been recorded using tube Pre-Amps and Mics on 96kHz.

mandolin

world strings series

World Strings Series – Mandolin

A mandolin is a musical instrument in the lute family. While it comes in many shapes, it is usually round or teardrop-shaped, sometimes with scrolls or other projections, and either plucked, or strummed.

Early mandolins had six double courses of gut strings, tuned similarly to lutes, and plucked with the fingertips. Modern mandolins originated in Naples, Italy in the late 18th century, commonly have four pairs of metal strings. Today, there are mandolins with a twist in almost any region.

EarthMoments have recorded an acoustic mandolin from the middle east carrying the definitive sound signature, from the Mediterranean to the Balkan.

Optimized with the closest attention to detail, the Classic Mandolin Bundle samples have been recorded using tube Pre-Amps and Mics on 96kHz.

World Strings Series – Ethnic Violin

EarthMoments adds an exciting new addition to its ultra special World String Series that explores the many string instruments of the world: Ethnic Violin Bundle.

A must-have library, the Ethnic Violin Bundle is a warm collection of 335 ethnic violin loops played by exceptional musicians.

The bundle includes a range of samples from the Klezmer origins in Eastern Europe, journeys through to other ethnic East European styles influences, and moves across the ocean to Jewish community wedding celebrations in USA. The Klezmer style of playing is easily identified by its characteristic expressive melodies that impersonate the human voice.

Optimised with the closest attention to detail, the Ethnic Violin Bundle samples have been recorded using tube Pre-Amps and Mics on 96kHz.
